BIPARTISAN BUDGET DEAL

Cutting Spending and Protecting Our Priorities

In March, I joined my Democratic and Republican colleagues in the Connecticut General Assembly and voted on a bipartisan budget deal to close the Fiscal Year 2016 budget shortfall of $220 million. The deal restores hospital funding, preserves town aid and protects funding for core social services. True leadership means staying at the negotiating table, hashing things out and reaching a compromise. This bipartisan agreement once again demonstrates that Democrats are willing to compromise in a way where we don't abandon our principles of protecting our investments in property tax relief, community hospitals, education, transportation and the safety net. We remain committed to making long-term structural changes to benefit the hardworking families of Connecticut.

The bipartisan budget deal achieves the following:

- Balances the 2016 budget.
- Restores $140 million in hospital funding.
- Preserves core government services and protects funding for many vital social services, such as mental health and services for people with disabilities.
- Defends property tax relief and preserves historic investments to cities and towns through municipal aid.
- Focuses on long-term savings with 60% of the budget cuts that can be used in future years.
